2011 AUIP Student Blog: Share Your Student Perspective

March 28, 2011 -- American Universities International Programs (AUIP) launches its 2011 student blogging program for our readers to learn firsthand from students about their study abroad experiences with AUIP. Our readers include current, alumni and prospective students; parents; faculty and staff; suppliers; field guides and anyone else interested in study abroad.

AUIP seeks creative students willing to share their study abroad experiences with our readers. No prior knowledge of blogging or social media is required.

Eligibility

Students must be currently enrolled on an AUIP 2011 program with one of our partner institutions in the United States.

Commitment

The commitment is to blog at least one time per week for the duration of their study program and at least three times within one month of returning to the United States. Student bloggers must submit their blog entries to AUIP for approval and posting in accordance with the AUIP Student Blog Contract. Student bloggers are not required, but are encouraged, to include photographs, videos and web links within their blog.

Benefits

The student blogger positions are voluntary and seen as professional experience and service, however, there may be opportunities to earn gift cards, free items and/or other incentives as a blogger.

Successful bloggers can have a stronger chance to serve as an AUIP ambassador and/or intern in the future.

Application Process

Interested students should complete the two steps below. Selected bloggers will receive further guidance and support during their blogging.

1. Complete 2011 AUIP Student Blog Application below.
2. Sign the AUIP Student Blog Contract. If you need a copy of the Contract, e-mail info@auip.com.
3. Submit your application and signed contract by April 25, 2011 at 5 p.m. EST. Please include your name and e-mail address on all application materials. Submit your two documents as attached Microsoft Word or PDF documents to eleanor@auip.com.
